Jim Worley

Jim Worley has called Highlands Ranch home since 1985. He decided to move here because he says, “It was a very well planned community and Douglas County has an excellent school district.”

When asked what he likes most about Highlands Ranch, Jim responds, “I like almost everything. This community was very well planned.”

First elected to the Metro District Board in 1999, Jim says, “My objective is to give back what I can to serve this excellent community.” He manages a water and sanitation special district that serves a community in Adams County near Brighton. He also serves as a trustee for the Highlands Ranch Park & Recreation Foundation, is a long-time member of the E911 Authority Board, and is actively involved in the Douglas County Republican Party.

Jim and his wife Melanie and we have two grown kids, Brittany and Blake.
